About the wood...

Lamberts wood is situated on the riverbank adjacent to the picturesque Aysgarth Falls in the heart of the Yorkshire Dales National Park. Two areas of woodland have been planted, amounting to 1.75 hectares in total, which link in with other woodlands in the surrounding area, including Freeholders and St Josephs on the opposite bank.

The sites contain Ash, Rowan, Oak, Holly and Hawthorn along with a high proportion of Hazel which were chosen because the area is a favoured habitat of dormice; a species for which Hazel provides an excellent food source.

How to get there...

There is a footpath running from the rear of the church yard at Aysgarth Falls to Hestholme Bridge which passes both areas of planting.

The Yorkshire Dales Millennium Trust is a small charity doing big things to support every aspect of life in the Yorkshire Dales. By supporting our work you have helped to restore part of the wonderful jigsaw of features which makes the Yorkshire Dales landscape so special.

Thank you.

Please Note: The woodland is situated on private land and is not open to the public (except on official YDMT woodland open days). There is perimeter access around the site via public footpaths which provide a good view of the woodland.

Map

We're passionate about restoring woodlands in the Yorkshire Dales. With your help we've planted over 1 million new native broadleaf trees so far, creating hundreds of natural woodlands which will absorb carbon, create vibrant wildlife habitats and enrich the landscape for people to enjoy.
Thank you for your vital support.
